

The Romance Of A Roaring Fire

No matter where you are, a roaring fire adds a touch of cosiness during a long cold winter's day, and provides the perfect excuse to cuddle up with your better half...

7 JANUARY 2022

Share via

by SHARLA AULT, Local Expert, Italy, Condé Nast Johansens

On cold winter days, there's nothing nicer than curling up on a sofa beside a roaring fireplace. There's something hypnotising about the dancing flames, the crackling of the wood and the occasional sparks that float up into the air. Add the scent of the burning wood, the warmth when you draw near, the darkness in the room... and allow the dreaming to begin.

Here are a few of my favourite places for a cosy snuggle beside the fire...

Looking into Pepita restaurant from Esplanade Tergesteo – Luxury Retreat' terrace

In the spa town of Montegrotto-Abano, you're able to fully immerse yourself in the warming thermal spa waters of Esplanade Tergesteo – Luxury Retreat and meditate on the flames set atop a pedestal that emerges from the hotel's White Pool. There are also fireplaces located in the sexy Vital Suites. Plus, one at the centre of its Pepita restaurant. (Pepita means 'gold nugget'. The homonymous restaurant is aptly lit up by the gold from the fireplace.) Fire pits on the terrace also lend themselves to intimate chats in the fresh air.